

Make Your Party Spring To Life

Spring entertaining ideas, from bridal showers to Easter parties

Don't pack up that iron form yet. . .

There is no better way to create an exciting centerpiece for your event than using WILLIAMSBURG decorating forms (they're not just for Christmas!). A favorite for bridal showers is the iron punchbowl form, which makes it easy to create an impressive arrangement around a large bowl. Just add fresh fruit or vegetables, and you'll have a beautiful display that's perfect for that spring luncheon.

Pink is hot. . .

Pink is a trend-watering color this spring, so why not set off your table with a branch of crape myrtle blossoms? This beautiful, vibrantly pink flowering tree abounds in the Williamsburg area and also in "Summer Bough," WILLIAMSBURG's newest dinnerware by Mottahedeh. The pattern fabulously incorporates crape myrtles to bring the colors of Virginia's warm seasons into your house anytime of the year. For a real element of charm, mix and match the coordinating pieces of this set.

Accent pieces make the event. . .

It's often the little things that matter, and this certainly "rings" true when hosting a small gathering of friends or family. Napkin rings are such a fun and easy way to accent your table. They're versatile and adaptable for both formal and informal table settings. Start your collection now—not only can you use them for napkins, but they also make great candle rings and party favors!

It's not fresh, but I won't tell. . .

I can't stress how easy and beautiful faux botanicals can be. Once the weather starts to warm up and people start feeling social, you just never know when a guest might stop by. With a faux arrangement, you never have to worry about watering or pulling out stems as they wither. I also love to use the faux stems in centerpiece arrangements with iron forms and as accents around the house.

Wreaths—they're not just for the door anymore. . .

WILLIAMSBURG's boxwood wreath, egg wreath, and wildflower wreath—all are beautiful on the front door, of course, but how about the dinner table? Try laying one flat and putting a candle in the middle to create an inspiring centerpiece. And think of the joy the kids would get from an adorable WILLIAMSBURG garden bunny perched in the middle of a speckled egg wreath during Easter brunch or an egg hunt.
